Dear Jim,

It is ok to list. In fact Eutelsat Asia is a licensed carrier with ACMA. Our official holding entity should be Eutelsat Asia Pte Ltd and satellite name is E172A. Please proceed and thanks for informing.

Best regards,

Ken

Hi Jim,

I have forward this to Ken to get his approval.

Regards

Kenneth

Dear Kenneth,

As you are aware, we license our leased E172A carriers through ACMA which is the radiocommunications regulator in Australia. ACMA is in the process of updating their Determination for foreign (i.e. non-Australian owned) satellites – see attached. By Eutelsat listing in the Determination, companies such as SpeedCast which lease bandwidth from Eutelsat, are able to apply for Apparatus licenses for the transponder carrier frequencies leased from Eutelsat. For multiple earth stations operating on the same carrier frequencies, this method of licensing is more time and cost efficient.

In order for ACMA to include Eutelsat in the Determination, ACMA has asked for permission to list Eutelsat. It would be appreciated if you can advise if Eutelsat gives ACMA permission for Eutelsat to be listed in the Foreign Space Objects Determination, and also that the following ownership information for E172A is correct:

- Eutelsat Communications S.A. (incorporated in France)
