Dear [REDACTED],

Outcome of your complaint under the Interactive Gambling Act 2001

I refer to the complaint made by Tabcorp Holdings Ltd on 22 January 2019 to the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA) under the Interactive Gambling Act 2001 (IGA) about the Lottoland service at the website <https://www.lottoland.com.au>.

The ACMA conducted an investigation of the Lottoland service under section 21 of the IGA. That investigation has now concluded with the ACMA finding:

- > the Lottoland jackpot betting services named Mon & Wed Jackpot, Tue Jackpot, Thu Jackpot, US Millions (previously US MegaMillions) and US Power are provided by Lottoland Australia Pty Ltd in contravention of subsection 15(2A) of the IGA, as these services are prohibited interactive gambling services with an Australian-customer link.
- > the provision of the Lottoland jackpot betting service named Daily Millions (previously Fri Jackpot) does not contravene the IGA.

Lottoland disputes the ACMA's findings of a contravention under subsection 15(2A) of the IGA and commenced proceedings in the Supreme Court of New South Wales Equity Division yesterday. Please see the media statement published today on the ACMA's website at <https://acma.gov.au/theACMA/acma-finds-lottoland-in-breach-of-the-interactive-gambling-act-1>. As noted in this statement, the ACMA will not be making further comment while legal proceedings are on foot.

Yours sincerely,
