Hi Glenn

The webpage has been updated - <https://www.acma.gov.au/changes-amateur-radio-call-sign-policy>

Thanks

Hi Glenn

That looks fine to me.

Thanks

Hello Stewart – suggested minor edits – see below.

Rgds
Glenn

If you have already upgraded your four letter Foundation callsign to a three letter callsign, you can keep it if you are upgrading your qualification to Standard or Advanced. However, if you have a Foundation four letter call sign (Fxxx) you will be required to change your call sign if you upgrade to Standard or Advanced.

What do you think? Once this is settled I will sent it to AMC.

Kind regards

Stewart White

Hello Patrick

I note the following paragraph in the ACMA announcement on the callsign template:

You can also keep your current call sign if you wish, including if you get a new qualification (for example, going from foundation to standard, or standard to advanced).

The intent of the new template is to remove the connection between three letter callsigns and licence grade and also to eventually phase out Fxxx series callsigns.

Under the new template, a person upgrading from FL to standard (or advanced) has to change their callsign from four to three (or two) letters.

Could you amend the text above to remove mention of FL to standard, please – i.e.:

You can also keep your current call sign if you are upgrading from Standard to Advanced.

Regards
Glenn
