Dear Mr Kelly

Thank you for your email from Friday 25 September.

I note your comments regarding the apology in the letter and the statement on the website. Please note the statement was drafted as a standalone document and without the context of your original email, it did not refer to the apology that was in my letter. In response to your recent comments unless you have an objection, I intend to add to the website my letter to you and a copy of your email that I was responding to.

Dear Ms Chapman,

Thank you for forwarding a copy of what has been posted on ACMA's website.

However I am extremely disappointed that what you have publicly posted now retreats from the letter that you sent me on the 23rd Sept 2020, which included a public apology.

Without this public apology being included, the statement on ACMA's website can easily be interpreted as giving tacit approval to the belief that social media platforms should have removed my post (rather than ACMA).

Therefore, to avoid any ambiguity I request that you include in this public statement the same words that you used in your letter to me of 23rd Sept 2020 - that you 'unreservedly apologise and regret' that your comments suggested any judgement on the Facebook post of Mr Craig Kelly in regards to Hydroxychloroquine.

Yours faithfully,
Craig Kelly MP
Member for Hughes
