Letter to AMC - request for details of AMC assessors and removed assessors.pdf

Hi Dean,

On 7 December 2023, the ACMA made the Radiocommunications (Amateur Radio Examinations) Rules 2023 (Accreditation Rules), which were registered on the Federal Register of Legislation today.

The communications about this and the class licence arrangements should be released soon.

Under the Accreditation Rules, we plan to accredit persons to be able to fulfil a similar role for the ACMA to that which AMC assessors perform for the AMC. That includes, in the first instance, accrediting current AMC assessors so that we have a pool of accredited assessors from 19 February 2024.

The Accreditation Rules outline various matters the ACMA must take into account when considering whether a person should be given accreditation. Some of these relate to whether a person was an AMC assessor or had been removed from the role. Accordingly, I'm seeking details from the AMC to be able to take those matters into consideration.

The requested details and timings are outlined in full in the attached letter. In summary thought, we're hoping you can provide a formal full list of AMC assessors (as at 13 December) by 18 December, then a list of assessors removed by the end of January, please.

As always, please reach out with any questions.

Kind regards,
Anneke
