Thanks team.

As the delegated decision-making guidance outlines:

‘Staff should contact the applicant to investigate their previous accreditation as an AMC assessor. Staff can use information gathered from these contacts to determine if the applicant has demonstrated an understanding of their previous conduct and identify any steps the applicant intends to take to prevent any breaches of the Guidelines occurring in the future. Staff need to keep a written record of these discussions – either a file note or an email to the applicant outlining key points and outcomes.’

The AMC has outlined that [REDACTED] was removed as an assessor ‘because of his aggressive behaviour and almost constant badgering emails’.

Kind regards,
Anneke

Hi team,

The AMC has provided details of AMC assessors removed from the role.

There is only one: [REDACTED].

As you know, ss 11(1)(f) of the Accreditation Rules outlines that 'if the person was not on the List of Authorised Assessors on the commencement day – whether the person had been removed from that List before the commencement day' is a matter we must have regard to when assessing applications for General Assessor Accreditation or Specialist Assessor Accreditation.

Grateful if you can also incorporate this information into the internal documents that guide these processes (e.g. hyperlink to this information in the delegation guidelines).

If [REDACTED] does apply, please let me know and do not approve it so we can then work through a response to the application.

Kind regards,
Anneke
