

News of the week

Our NAIDOC Week 2023 celebrations

7/12/2023

This year we celebrated NAIDOC Week with an Indigenous-inspired morning tea and art workshops lead by our very own contemporary Aboriginal artist, [REDACTED].

*Main image: from left to right: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] in the Canberra office*

The year's NAIDOC Week (2-9 July) theme was For our Elders, which celebrated and acknowledged the important role and prominence that elders have in our communities and families. NAIDOC week was a great opportunity for us to learn and celebrate the culture and history of First Nations people.

But first - tell us what you think!

The HR Strategy team would love to hear your feedback on this year's NAIDOC Week activities on the NAIDOC Week feedback survey by Friday 21 July. This will help us plan for future activities.

Online community

Throughout the week, we shared daily posts with information about how to get involved in celebrations and recommendations for podcasts, movies and books. We've compiled these posts in our NAIDOC Week Celebration Series for MS Teams– take a look!

Morning tea

Staff got together across all locations for a delicious morning tea prepared by local indigenous catering companies.

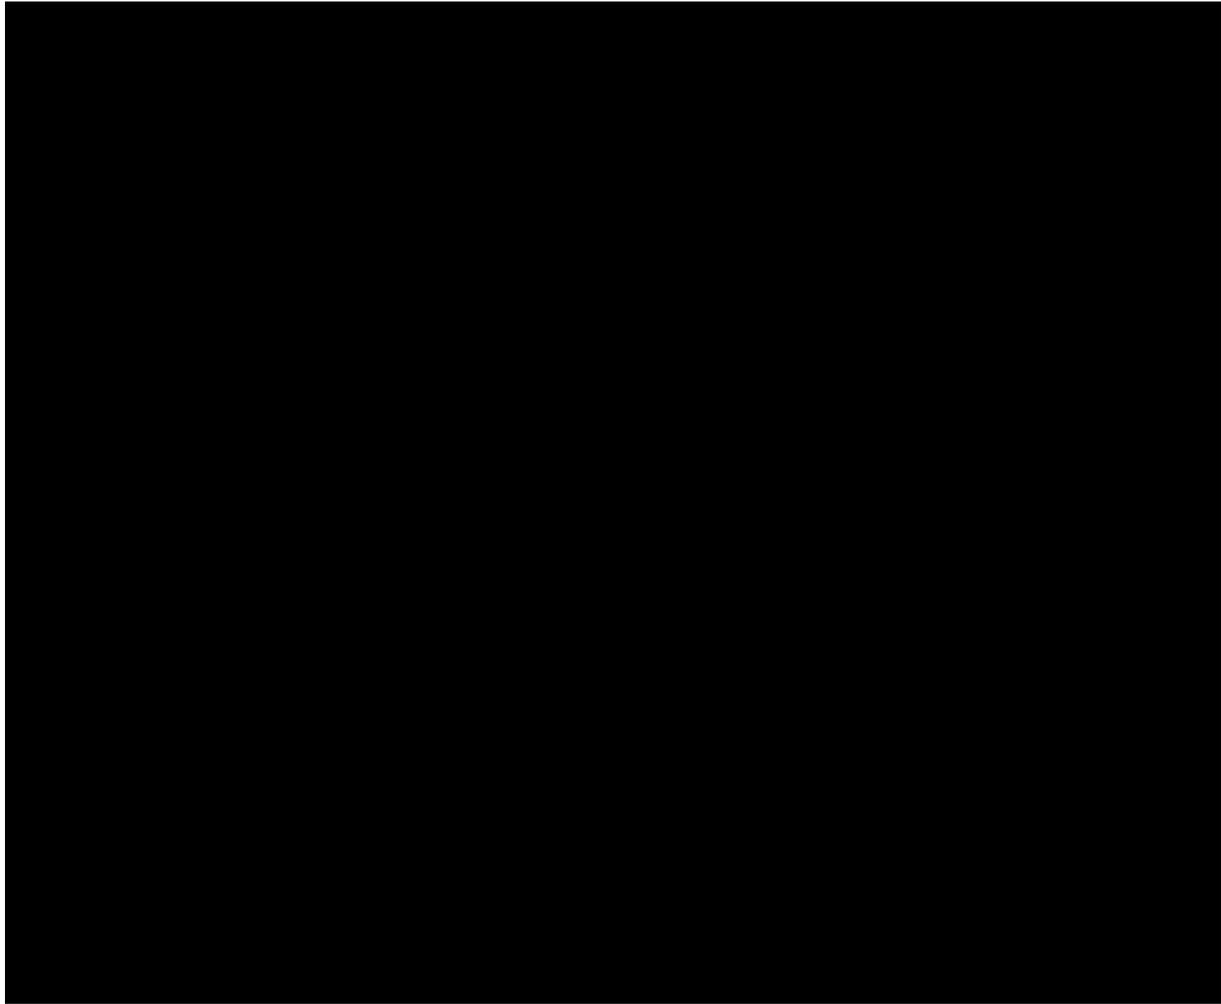

Melbourne

Canberra

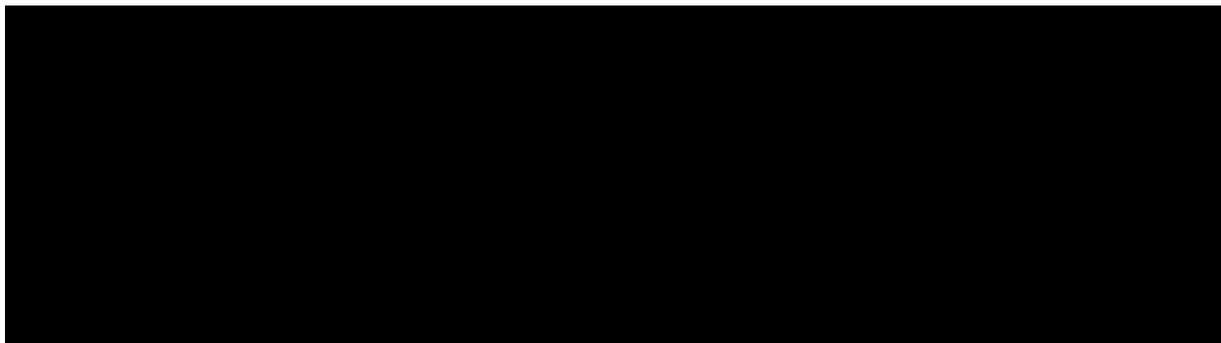

Sydney

Art workshops

Staff across all locations also had the opportunity to learn about and create some Aboriginal-inspired art.

Hosted by our very own contemporary Aboriginal artist, [REDACTED], participants saw [REDACTED] demonstrating and explaining the meaning of some symbols used to create Aboriginal art. They were then invited to create their own piece of contemporary Aboriginal-inspired artwork.

Don't forget to let us know what you think? What would you like to see more of?

Complete the NAIDOC Week feedback survey by Friday 21 July.

