

The telecommunication carrier needs to take into consideration that the user is a person with disabilities, and to be aware of the range of accessible mobile phones accessible for persons with disabilities that can be purchased both in Australia and overseas.