Hi Alana

You're absolutely right and I don't believe some of the individual comments pointed to a specific broadcast or program.

I definitely came across several broadcasts with themes around women's appearance and or sex, weight, 'gay' comments etc. which appear to be trends highlighted in the sheet Senator Hanson-Young provided.

Please let me know if you would like to listen to these broadcasts and I can pull them together for you.

Kind regards

It also occurs to me now re-reading the sheet and your notes below, that some of the dot points weren't just pointing at specific broadcasts, but also a pattern and trend of individual comments across many segments/programs (e.g. the repeated jokes re: housemates).

Hi [REDACTED] – thank you for this; that's useful to have on hand (and also if/when we get any Code complaints about these broadcasts).

Hi Alana

For your review [content warning: vulgar content]

I have broken down the sheet Senator Hanson-Young handed to the six (6) dot points below:

1. Re: Jokes about gay people – could not locate broadcast.
2. Re: Repeated jokes about a producer's Asian housemates. I located a broadcast whereby Kyle refers to the producer (Pete's) Taiwanese housemate as 'Kampuchians' – however the segment did not involve discussion about importing heroin, being in jail or violent or putting on a fake Asian accent (which is what the sheet of paper had). Therefore, I have not the broadcast but if you wish to listen to it, please let me know.
3. Re: Jokes about dating men who are not white – see broadcast attached titled Like mother like daughter. I would recommend listening to it from 5:36.
4. Re: Derisive language about women and sex – see broadcast attached titled Wheelbarrow. The segment starts as soon as you open the broadcast.
5. Re: jokes about overweight women and mental health – could not locate a specific broadcast about overweight women. There were several broadcasts about Kyle talking about overweight women, weight loss and Ozempic in general. Please let me know if you wish to listen to these broadcasts.
6. Re: Urination competition – could not locate the specific broadcast.

Please let me know if you require any further information.

Warm regards
