

Changes to radiocommunications equipment rules

Current arrangements

After commencement of amendments

Labelling

Suppliers need to label with the RCM prior to supply (under labelling notices).

Labelling notices retained as equipment rules. Requirements remain the same.

Suppliers need to label with the RCM prior to supply (under equipment rules).

Record-keeping

Suppliers need to keep compliance records based on risk level (under labelling notice).

Labelling notices retained as equipment rules. Requirements remain the same.

Suppliers need to keep compliance records based on risk level (under equipment rules).

Standards compliance

Devices need to comply with legislative standards which reference industry standards (under standards and Act).

Standards retained as equipment rules. New rules to have similar requirements for devices to comply with standards.

Suppliers need to ensure equipment complies with specified industry standards (under equipment rules).

Permit for non-standard device

Permits for possession and operation of non-standard devices can be issued under the Act.

New equipment rules to have similar permits for non-standard devices.

Permit for non-compliant device

Equipment rules can include the ability for the ACMA to issue permits for supply of non-compliant or unlabelled equipment.

Permission to supply non-standard device

The ACMA can give permission to supply a non-standard device under the Act.

New equipment rules to have permits for supply of non-standard and/or unlabelled devices.

Permit to supply non-compliant and/or unlabelled device

Equipment rules can include the ability for the ACMA to issue permits for supply of non-compliant or unlabelled equipment.

Restriction of supply of cellular mobile repeaters

A person must only supply a cellular mobile repeater to a person who is authorised to use the repeater (under Act and Regulations).

New equipment rules to have similar restrictions on the supply of cellular mobile repeaters.

A person must only supply a cellular mobile repeater to a person who is authorised to use the repeater (under equipment rules).

= requirements remain the same

= requirements amended